Lastly --- another story of repatriation; the modern Anzacs arriving at a port in Egypt en route for the journey back home. Australians and New Zealanders taken prisoner in past engagements have been returned under an exchange agreement --- the badly wounded and the protected personnel who will take no part in the future fighting, but who now go home. ~~^~~

It is impossible to watch these scenes unmoved; to remember the unhappy months they have spent in captivity; to imagine the joy that news must have brought them --- the news that they were going home; wish them bon voyage for the rest of the journey --- and happy meetings in the homeland. ~~^~~
