THE BATTLE OF FRANCE --- ALLIES ADVANCE ON THE WHEELS OF ROUTED
GERMAN ARMY.

The victory of our armies in France is so magnificent that it's difficult to do justice to it in words or pictures: the grand events that took wings with the bridging of the Seine by our armies have spread not shadows but sunshine over the major part of a continent. After five years of grim, relentless slogging --- here for every man and woman/^{of} ~~the~~ the United Nations who have fought and worked and died --- here is the beginning of a glorious reward. Victory in France brings magically near complete and final victory over Germany

Troyes --- one of the ^{new places} ~~villages~~ to be liberated; there will be others to follow in this issue --- and still more in editions of Gaumont British News yet to come. But our armies are advancing so fast --- we need not apologize for being unable to keep pace with them.

Dieppe: that was a happy little seaside resort in France before the war. We lost it to the Germans and they staked the seashore against invasion. Canadians gave their lives in a big-scale raid upon Dieppe: but many lives were saved by their brave experiment when the grand invasion came on June 6th 1944. Now, Dieppe is free once more. There is a cheerful greeting ~~in the~~ for the new Canadians who entered on the march along the coast of Channel ports
