

The result of the match was a win for England 3-nil. But that isn't very important. The important thing is that Brussels is one more city where civilized people can once again play a game of football if they want to, without worrying about which is the master race.

Now down to business again; forward elements in Holland ~~ERDEK~~ crossing the frontier into Germany. American Airborne Troops and Reconnaissance Cars of Britain's Sherwood Rangers. It now seems quite definite that the Allies will not go racing through Germany as they went through France and Belgium; ~~That we must regret because it shows the loss of men during the troops of the~~ ~~but at least it will demonstrate to German thick-~~ heads that war can also be terrible for Germans --- not only for other nations.

Weather has been against flying for many weeks now; but a reminder that Allied warplanes are still doing a tremendous job comes with this batch of operational film from the Eighth Air Force. Missions against military installations, enemy transport and enemy aircraft show some spectacular ~~xx~~ results. Seen from the air, the effect is terrific enough. Imagine the effect on the receiving end --- with the enemy already fighting a losing war on all fronts.
