Thus, in London, was the crowning of our Queen. But long before the Queen was due to leave the Abbey, the head of the great procession was moving off. In front were Regimental Bands - and then came men of the Services and Police Forces of the Colonies... Here, in Trafalgar Square, led by four troopers of the Household Cavalry, follows a contingent from Canada..(BRING UP)

In the carriage processions of the Prime Ministers - Sir Winston and Lady Churchill. (BRING UP) Now at the Abbey - the carriage-procession of the Princes and Princesses of the Blood Royal; and the rain is coming down in earnest. The procession of her Majesty the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret. (BRING UP) And lastly - her Majesty the Queen, with the Duke of inburgh. The long solemn ceremony inside the Abbey - moving and butiful though it was - must have been a great ordeal. How splendidly as her Majesty sustained it. She shows not the slightest trace of fatigue as she faces the long drive back to Buckingham Palace. (BRING UP)

Far ahead - at the gates of Hyde Park - the men of Australia include V.C's

Further ahead still, march the men from many other parts of the Commonwealth, Southern Rhodesia, Pakistan, Ceylon. (BRING UP) and soldiers back from Korea .. (BRING UP)

Picadilly Circus, New Zealanders proud in their country's part in the British triumph at Everest - a shining achievement to add to this Coronation Day. . And now - Trafalgar Square . (BRING UP)

Part of the procession has now almost reached the Palace; and from this vantage point on the long route we see men of the Regiments of the British Army. (BRING UP) The Queen's coach swings once more towards the Admiralty Arch. (BRING UP) The long day is nearly done; despite the weather, a day of triumph; a day of fulfilment - a day of splendid, unforgetable memories.

The months of planning - and the weeks of petient reheared less in

The months of planning - and the weeks of patient rehearsal have been repaid in full measure. (BRING UP) Now - in the great circ le before the Palace gates, the people wait for their crowned Queen. (BRING UP) This is cur Queen - who has asked that we shall pray for her. With all our heart and mind - we solemnly pray; and say, with joy and fervour. LONG LIVE THE QUEEN....