Logging-

Canada-- where in the backwoods of Northern Quebec, lumberjacks are busy at their winter job-- felling hundreds of thousands of ~~logs~~ TREES. After ~~being~~ <sup>they've been</sup> cut into short lengths, a skid-loader - with special ~~xxx~~ claw-attachment- picks up 2½ tons of 12 ft ~~logs~~ logs in a matter of seconds. Then the load is <sup>placed</sup> ~~placed~~ on the world's largest ~~tractors~~ tractor-trailers. On arrival at the dump, ~~xxx~~ tons of logs are unloaded at a time. Here they remain on the ice, until the spring thaw sends them 300 miles to the mills at Three Rivers, where they're transformed into newsprint- ~~one of the Dominion's top exporters.~~

Ice-bound Holland-

Holland-- where the recent "Big Freeze" played havoc with navigation on the canals and rivers- imprisoning <sup>many craft</sup> ~~boats~~ in its iron grip. But powerful ice-breakers were ~~soon~~ brought into use, to prevent huge blocks of ice from crushing the dykes and piers, <sup>and so disastrously</sup> ~~which would seriously~~ ~~disrupt~~ the country's vital waterways.

Indians leave Korea-

Korea-- where India's General Thimmayya joins American officers in a farewell review of the United Nations' 8th Army, before the Indian custodian force, under his command, leaves for home. During the difficult months of supervising prisoners who refused re-patriation, the exemplary behaviour of these <sup>fine troops</sup> ~~troops~~ has won the admiration and respect of all.

Tumbler-

Illinois- where, at the University, Dick Browang- a <sup>tumbling</sup> ~~tumbling~~ ace- is applying the principles of gymnastics to athletics. The ~~unofficial~~ world record high jump is 6 ft, 11 inches, - but Dick sets his sights at 7 ft, 1 inch. And then with ~~skill~~ a "nifty" somersault, he promptly clears the bar. A new record? Well-- athletic boards say it isn't jumping- What do you think?
