

London: Luxurious furs face the judges at Park Lane House - a Concours d'Elegance of Fashion that owes its origin to the humble rabbit. (2)
This Chinchilla-blended tiered stole <sup>was</sup> one of the outstanding entries in the small fur class. And this Midnight Blue Jacket, with its contrasting white collar, reveal the craftsmanship that is giving the rabbit skin the appearance of expensive furs - ~~the same as~~ /s
Another trend - a handsome sapphire-shaded coat.
In all, fifty exhibits, in three classes, competed for Gold Medal Awards. Leading fashion-writers and buyers formed the judging panel.
For that town occasion on wintry days - a tailored suit - dyed to resemble ~~the same as~~ Sealskin.
Closer inspection by the judges brings a Gold Medal Award for this Cravat and Muff - which could easily pass for real Chinchilla.
By the way - no wild pelts are used; it's home breeding that produces the winners in rabbit fur fashions.
