

London Airport: Flying in on a mission of goodwill, the Japanese Premier, Mr Yoshida, was welcomed to Britain by Lord Reading, Minister of State, Foreign Office.

On arrival - the 76 year-old Statesman (who spent ~~over~~^{Two} years in Britain as the Japanese Ambassador) said that he hoped that his week's visit would help to promote the traditional friendship between our two countries.

Horse Riding in Rome

Rome: Convention time in the Italian capital is celebrated with a horse show. Every country, of course, celebrates this get-together in different ~~ways~~^{ways}. in America, they usually "go to town" in Britain, we go in conference to the sea-side. But in Rome - they decide to watch the Mounted Police in a spectacular tournament.

Famous for their riding skill, over a hundred carabinieri give a masterly display of horsemanship - proving that, in the saddle, at least, these mounted Police are "a law unto themselves."

Cattle-round-up

Bavaria: It's Round-up Time in the Alps. Every Autumn, near Berchtesgaden, the cattle are driven down, from their summer grazing on the mountain slopes, to their winter quarters. But these cattle have to be good sailors as well as mountaineers - the trek can only be completed by boat.

Journey's End - ~~the cattle are~~ ^{AND ALTHOUGH, WHEN THE CATTLE COME ASHORE,} they're decorated with campaign ribbons, ~~by the villagers,~~ ^{we get some of them} ~~but some~~ cattle are feeling too sick to care....
