

Royal Visit to Wales

Wales: During their three-day visit, the Queen and her husband toured the Brecknockshire Agricultural Show and figured in an amusing incident, when Her Majesty had to screen her bouquet from the bold attentions of a pony.

During the Show, farm workers received awards for a life-time of service to agriculture. <sup>Wales</sup> ~~in the Principality.~~

The tour then passed on, to the field of civic achievement. ~~at Fawcett, Carmarthenshire,~~ The new Usk reservoir (a triumph of ~~vision~~ planning and social welfare for Swansea Corporation) was inaugurated by the Queen.

At Aberystwyth, a National welcome from Miss Janet Jones - the "Miss Wales" of the Welsh Tourist Board...

Here, the Queen opened the complete building of the National Library of Wales. <sup>She</sup> ~~she~~ received a bouquet from little Margaret Ellis - who was ~~stricken~~ evidently overawed by the weight of learning, housed in this treasure house of Welsh literature.

The unveiling of commemorative plaques, signified that this Memorial to Welsh culture and learning, (founded in 1907) - has now been completed.

Scouts for Canada

At London Airport, "Operation Jamboree" gets under way as the first contingent of Boy Scouts, board chartered aircraft, bound for Ontario, and the Eighth World Jamboree...

Altogether, <sup>9</sup> ~~10~~ thousand will travel in this mass airlift - joining Scouts of fifty Nations in fellowship and goodwill.

America: Most motorists have wished, at some time or other, for wings, especially when they hit that traffic jam. But Leland Bryan went one step further - right into the airport...

~~He~~ He calls it a "convertible" <sup>with pod person!</sup> The folding wings make their appearance and the forty-horse-power engine gets him airborne. The "pegasus of the Open road!"
