

Britons on trial

In Cairo - the four Britons, who (with eleven Egyptians and one Yugoslav), are accused of spying for Britain against Egypt - made a brief appearance in court.

Despite having been in custody for seven months, the four men looked in reasonably good health.

After a preliminary hearing, the Chief defence lawyer, <sup>Egyptian</sup> Ahmed Rushdi, ~~an Egyptian~~, asked for a postponement of the case to enable him to study the charges. The request was granted.

Trade Fair

In New York, the World Trade Fair opened, with civic dignitaries cutting a huge loaf of bread - symbolising an era of peace and plenty.

Among the trade-stands of fifty-nine Nations - Great Britain <sup>with</sup> and the Commonwealth, was one of the major exhibitors.

The British Pavilion features our most important dollar-~~exports~~ exports - wallens, aircraft and atomic equipment.

In London, Prince Philip attended a trade-occasion - when he was received by the Lord Mayor, at the Mansion House. (2)

Another Royal guest was King Gustav of Sweden - who presided over the banquet to mark the 50th anniversary of the Swedish Chamber of Commerce for the United Kingdom.

The occasion will lead to a strengthening of the traditional trade ties between Britain and Sweden.

Fishing Festival

Fishing is said to soothe the nerves. But in Oregon, the anglers celebrate the Spring Fishing Season in nerve-racking style - by shooting the rapids of the Mackenzie River.

Over a hundred craft battled the seventeen-mile stretch of racing, churning waters.

But here's the one that just could't get away. No, they haven't caught a crab - they're trapped in a small whirlpool.

In the giddy round of life - fishing is such a soothing business.
