Wimbledon

Wimbledon: They come to see and to be seen. The faithful fans to watch the world's best tennis and the colourful personalities of the summer game.

Mrs Vogler of Germany.

And America's Kay Fageros - ~~no doubt keeping an eye-catching outfit~~ <sup>as eye-catching off the court as on.</sup> ~~for her first 1958 appearance...~~

Another arrival was the Champion - Althea Gibson - ~~ready~~ to defend her Singles' Crown...

A welcome, too, for Mrs Du Pont - the 1947 Champion.

But British hopes were all for 17 year-old Christine Truman. The British girl ~~gained~~ <sup>had</sup> an easy first victory over ~~Mrs J. L. Deloford.~~

Mrs J.L. Deloford., ~~That will give her confidence for these stern~~ <sup>gaining</sup> ~~battles ahead.~~ <sup>further battles</sup>

Totem Pole

London: It's 100 feet long - an outsize gift from Canada - ~~a~~ a carved cedarwood totem pole, presented to the Queen by the people of British Columbia, to mark the Province's centenary celebrations.

It was cut and shaped by Canada's most famous carver, Mungo Martin - a Red Indian Chief.

But the biggest job was to get the ungainly giant ~~through~~ from Surrey Docks and through London ~~for~~ <sup>to be put up</sup> in Windsor Great Park.

~~Some job!~~ ~~But compared with Kaw Garden's 225 foot flag pole this is just a toothpick.~~ <sup>Yes, that's right and the traffic away!</sup>
