Teenage Fashion

15th August 1958

While the boys admired the latest in space-suits - the Junior Miss, watched a Teenage Fashion Display at the Boys and Girls Exhibition, ^{at London's} Olympia.

To-day, ^{many British} big manufacturers cater specially for the young girl: with gay colour schemes such as this red-and-white wool check suit.

They even design clothes with a continental trend. An Italian-style Jersey Jumper suit, ^{for example}

And for Winter Sports - this ^{ATTRACTIVE} ~~attractive~~ outfit: a felt skirt, tights and a nylon sweater would make any girl feel like a "Swiss Miss".

The designers cater for every mood of the teenager. For casual wear - a smart 'shortie' red jacket and sudette trows.

A cerise printed poul dance dress for the girl in the gym-slip who dreams ^{of a romantic date} ~~all day about meeting her Prince Charming~~. And then gets kept in for snaking ~~bull's eyes~~.

A lovely evening dress in blue or pink ~~and~~ brocade. Something to make a girl look her age..even if it makes Mother feel hers.

Well, that's the designer's idea ~~of teenage fashion~~. ~~And very nice, too!~~

But ^{AROUND} ~~in~~ the coffee bars - the girls have their own ideas.

The teenager is a dream in slacks. ~~A daisy dilly with a pony tail.~~

The modern miss with flapper beads. She likes jazz. ~~...~~

She's a complete entity in "separates". ^{And} ~~...~~ right now, she is the fashion
