

THE QUEBEC CONFERENCE.

To amplify our first pictures of Mr. Churchill in Canada come these additional shots from Quebec. In the public mind this great gathering of leaders is precursory to momentous Allied moves.

Mrs. Churchill and her daughter Mary availed themselves of the opportunity to do a little sightseeing. In place of a limousine they use a one horse-power cabriolet to take them on their tour.

On the terrace of the Citadel, are the men who have shaped future history. Upon their deliberation hangs the whole course of events. Not distant but immediate action.

The British and Canadian Chiefs of Staff get down to business. Lord Louis Mountbatten is appointed supreme Allied Commander in South East Asia.

A new command created for conducting operations against Japan. The whole broad field of global action is covered during these war-shaping discussions.

By Transatlantic Clipper has come Mr. Eden and Mr. Brendan Bracken. The Foreign Secretary and the Minister of Information hasten to the Conference, to assist in the untangling of these political knots which military success in Europe has disclosed. Swift moving events are adding to the weight of business.

A disintegrating Italy, a resurgent France, a quickening in the Balkans and Denmark in revolt. And all the world is on tip-toe for electrifying news. But riding through all this is that steady, firm Anglo-American friendship, which finds renewed expression on Canadian soil.

THE QUEBEC CONFERENCE

To amplify our first pictures of Mr. Churchill in Canada come these

The Countess of Athlone is pictured in this group, the Earl of Athlone, the Governor General is recognized on the left of the back row.

Mrs. Churchill and her daughter Mary availed themselves of the opportunity
The Prime Minister, President Roosevelt and Mr. MacKenzie King held secrets, to do a little sightseeing. In place of a Lincoln they use a one horsepower of colts to take them on their tour.

On the terrace of the Citadel, are the men who have shaped future history.

Upon their deliberation hangs the whole course of events. Not distant but

The British and Canadian Chiefs of Staff get down to business. Lord Louis

Mountbatten is appointed supreme Allied Commander in South East Asia.

A new command created for conducting operations against Japan. The whole broad field of global action is covered during these war-shaping discussions.

By Transatlantic Clipper has come Mr. Eden and Mr. Brendan Bracken. The Foreign

Secretary and the Minister of Information hasten to the Conference, to assist in the unravelling of those political knots which military success in Europe has disclosed. Swift moving events are adding to the weight of business.

A disintegrating Italy, a resurgent France, a quickening in the Balkans and Denmark in revolt. And all the world is on tip-toe for electrifying news.

But riding through all this is that steady, firm Anglo-American friendship, which finds renewed expression on Canadian soil.