LORD LOUIS IN MIDIA.

Completing his journey in the Liberator "MAROO FOLO" which flow him from England, Admiral Lord Louis Mounthatten, Supreme Commander of the South-East Asia Command, arrives in New Delhi. He is staying there a few days for consultation with Command Auchinlesh before travelling on to Changking.

It should not be long before we hear of big events jaking place in Burma regions where an intensification of action is expected,

BEAD LINE IN MAPLES,

Shipleads of white flour arrive in Naples; the first in three years to come to Italy. Allied Military Government officials check the imports from dockside to purchaser. Careful control is kept, from the time it goes to the gram grain merchants (who in turn sell to the bakers) to the memorit when an almost hysterical meb try to get their hands on it. At that point centrol becomes tough,

There's a big feller in there who, to my way of thinking, hean't got the Pascist microbe out of his system.

The bread quoue forms up under the doughbeys. The ration is about half a leaf each for two days - and it's white.
