

MIGHTY ATOM MOTOR-BIKE

It's your new post war runabout - or it will be when it comes off the active service list. Little Brother to the jeep, it's made to fit all sizes, one of the few things on wheels that'll take you anywhere and not be in the way when you get there. Paratroops used the "mighty atom" bike all the way from Normandy to Berlin. It can top 35 miles an hour and does two hundred miles to the gallon - so far as we know, it can't go upstairs - at least not yet.

Still on the subject of midget bikes, Mr. Lovegrove of Mitchem has made himself one. The garaging problem doesn't trouble him for the motor-scooter takes up less room than a push bike. "you can ride it round the dining room without moving the furniture," said Mr. Lovegrove, but he forget to tell us what a wife would say if her husband tried it.

Off to work the post-war way.

What's more, Ladies, with a carrier on the handlebars it might solve the shopping problem.
