

45-95
D-17800

TALKING TURKEY

Attleborough, Norfolk, and a Pathe cameraman, (prospecting for his Christmas dinner) drops in at nosebag time. Here's one part of Britain where a housewife can get a look at a turkey and not be told it's reserved for somebody else.

A proud and stand-offish bird - the turkey - all fitted up with a portable tail fan to keep him cool when he gets under the counter.

Who said turkeys don't know it'll soon be Christmas?

Taking the field are the visiting team - the December Dynamos - and they've brought their reserves.

For the Senior gobblers, these are anxious days; for them the stars foretell a black future around mid-December. ~~But~~ One way and another, it makes yer think.