

OPERATION DEADLIGHT

German U.boats - the weapons designed to sweep Britain off the seas - go to their last plunge; a thousand fathoms under the ocean in Blackall Deep, off the North Irish coast. Rocket and cannon shells were used as well as 250 pound depth charges.

Into this graveyard over 3 miles deep went one hundred and ten U.boats. Difficult to hold below the water line, they took a lot of punishment before the end.

The navy and the R.A.F. waited a long time for this moment - sinking the U.Boats in what used to be their hunting ground - the North Atlantic.

Alongside the smashing of German war weapons, goes an even bigger task; the eradication of Nazism from the minds of Europe's children. In Vienna, voluntary English classes begin. In this school, every child learns to speak a new language.
