FESTIVAL OF YOUTH

800 girls lead off at Britain's National Youth Festival at Wembley Stadium. Watching the display was the Duchess of Kent. Organised by the Central Council of Physical Recreation, the Festival brings together young men and women from England, Wales, Scotland, Czechoslovakia and Russia.

On the International Village Green, the Scottish contingent went through their traditional dances.

Final spectacle of the day brought every Youth representative on to the green, forming the United Nations symbol - U.N.
