PATHÉ FRONT PAGE

Copenhagen

Against the sombre background of saluting guns, the body of Prince Gustav of Sweden is taken aboard a battleship in Copenhagen.

Son of the Crown Prince, he was killed in the Dakota crash in which opera star Grace Moore also lost her life.

Prince Gustav was a great-grandson of Queen Victoria and leaves four daughters, as well as a nine-month-old son, who is now in line for the throne.

Members of the Swedish and Danish royal families attended a funeral service in Copenhagen and accompanied the coffin on its slow voyage across the frozen Baltic Sea to Sweden.

Florida

In Miami, where it's warm enough for such outdoor pastimes, these girls show off the latest hair-do's created by a Mr. Nicholas Carter. He calls this one Rhumba.

You can try this one for yourself if you can find the leaves, flowers and fruit. Now this is a very pretty one, my favourite so far. The name of the style is Miss Coquette. Thank you. This is one to fool your boy friend. On the right side it's all curls, but on the left, it's an upward sweep.

Newcastle

When Joseph Preys, the Belgian light-weight champion, met Billy Thompson from Hickleton Main, in a Newcastle ring, it was fast body punching all the way. Preys is in black pants.

It looked for a little while as though Preys was forcing the pace and then - whoops - where is that fellow? After that Thompson followed up with a few well chosen blows and was definitely on top. It was all the Belgian could do to hold on.

It was no surprise when the referee went over to Thompson's corner and declared him the winner! But no hard feelings. Going the full 10 rounds the contest gave Newcastle a good evening's sport.

Southampton

Into Southampton steamed a very welcome ship, carrying 2,000 of the 2nd Parachute Brigade home from Palestine. It was the first important unit to leave that troubled country. Among them were Major Paddy Brett, a flogged victim of the terrorists, and the G.C. Brigadier O'Brien Twehigg.
