ONE MINUTE NEWS

Mrs. Margaret Slee, President of America's Planned Parenthood Federation, maintains that European women should stop having babies for the next ten years.

At Lincoln, the Royal Agricultural Society holds its first show since 1939. It's the first at Lincoln for 40 years. The 100 acre showground on West Common is packed to capacity. The King and Queen joined a record 75,000 crowd to look at animals and agricultural exhibits from all parts of the country.

This team of brewer's horses attracted much attention.

A special demonstration was given by the Brocklesby Pack of Hounds.

The International jumping trial was the chief event in the ring. On a stiff course, Lt. Colonel Nicoll made the only clear round. From these riders, Britain's international team will be selected.

On the Thames "Silver Mile," it's once again Henley's Royal Regatta. First run in 1839, it's really a social occasion - with oarsmen from all over the world providing the excuse for a fashion parade. This year, flowered and attractive hats made a strong challenge to the threatening weather.

There was still a certain amount of rowing, of course. Here, Bryanston School (nearest to camera) meet Trinity Hall Cambridge. The Cambridge eight won.

In punts and boats, the spectators watch the races. In the Diamond Sculls, the Pennsylvanian challenger, John Kelly (pepped up with American steak and eggs) beat Belgium's Piessens by four lengths.
