

2-1F1501
2-SF1501
48/7
2-2F1501
2-2F1501

WORLD AT YOUR ELBOW

Steaming into the Polish harbour of Gdynia is the "Eastern Prince" with 15 hundred repatriates from Britain.

4 Last of a contingent of 90 thousand ex-servicemen, these veterans of the Eighth Army and the Normandy campaign return in response to their Government's appeal. For Poland needs the hands of all her people to tackle work of reconstruction.

More than a hundred British wives accompany their husbands, many with children born in Britain.

No scenes of welcome mark their arrival, but the babies hold the key to friendship in a strange land.

5 Across the Atlantic, another New England brings joy to youth, as New Hampshire schoolchildren revel in the season's heaviest snowfalls.

5 Skiing classes are part of the curriculum, and many an interesting story is written on the white page of the nursery slopes. The writing isn't very good - for frequently the nib gets crossed and more than one copy-book is blotted.

The highway of learning is a rough one in New Hampshire.

1 Intercepted on a New Jersey highway is a convey, which provides the clue to a mystery explosives shipload seized in a nearby port. Police find the lorries carry a cargo of M-3 explosive, nearly twice as destructive as T.N.T. Destination is a lonely farmhouse, where another 50 tons is found packed in war surplus crates. Knowledge of their contents is denied by the farmer. Simultaneously, as New York State Police detain a second convey, ownership becomes clear. The cargo was for shipment to Palestine's illegal armies, on the admission of arrested drivers.

2/ Threatening the peace of mind of every eligible male in the United States, Florida dictates new styles in Leap Year sweaters guaranteed to smooth the pathway to the altar steps. While British girls struggle to catch their bachelor friends with a new line in made-over duffle suiting (coupon free), Miss Florida gets out the knitting needles to prove that wool's the only thing for comfort. To make the long-sleeved model even more comfortable....a becoming hood is attached.

5-2F/501

Across the Atlantic, another New England brings joy to youth, as New Hampshire schoolchildren revel in the season's heaviest snowfalls. Skiing classes are part of the curriculum and many an interesting story is written on the white page of the nursery slopes. The writing isn't very good - for frequently the nib gets crossed and more than one copy book is blotted.

UP

Scene 17

The highway of learning is rough one in New Hampshire.

SKIING

Youngson Barber

X At Sun Valley, top skiers from colleges in the United States and Canada match speed down the slippery slopes of Mount Baldy in the sixth annual Inter-Collegiates.

X A driving snowstorm closes in - but that doesn't stop the skiers. Down a mountainside made more treacherous by its new snow blanket, these champions of today whiz at a mile-a-minute clip.

X At Hanover, New Hampshire, champions of tomorrow go from classes in reading, writing ~~arithmetick~~ and 'rithmetic to classes in skiing. Up in New England, they start 'em young. Three days a week on the slopes and an hour under expert ski instruction are all part of the regular school curriculum for kindergarten kids up. A tumble here is apt to show on your report card.

Lab finished