WORLD AT YOUR ELBOW

Steaming into the Polish harbour of Gdynia is the "Eastern Prince" with 15 hundred repatriates from Britain.

4 Last of a contingent of 90 thousand ex-servicemen, these veterans of the Eighth Army and the Normandy campaign return in response to their Government's appeal. For Poland needs the hands of all her people to tackle work of reconstruction.

More than a hundred British wives accompany their husbands, many with children born in Britain.

No scenes of welcome mark their arrival, but the babies hold the key to friendship in a strange land.

5 Across the Atlantic, another New England brings joy to youth, as New Hampshire schoolchildren revel in the season's heaviest snowfalls.

Skiing classes are part of the curriculum, and many an interesting story is written on the white page of the nursery slopes. The writing isn't very good - for frequently the nib gets crossed and more than one copy-book is blotted.

The highway of learning is a rough one in New Hampshire.

Intercepted on a New Jersey highway is a convey, which provides the clue to a mystery explosives shipload seized in a nearby port. Police find the lorries carry a cargo of M-3 explosive, nearly twice as destructive as T.N.T. Destination is a lonely farmhouse, where another 50 tons is found packed in war surplus crates. Knowledge of their contents is denied by the farmowner. Simultaneously, as New York State Police detain a second convey, ownership becomes clear. The cargo was for shipment to Palestine's illegal armies, on the admission of arrested drivers.

2/ Threatening the peace of mind of every eligible male in the United States, Florida dictates new styles in Leap Year sweaters guaranteed to smooth the pathway to the altar steps. While British girls struggle to catch their bachelor friends with a new line in made-over duffle suiting (coupon free), Miss Florida gets out the knitting needles to prove that wool's the only thing for comfort. To make the long-sleeved model even more comfortable....a becoming hood is attached.

This pastel slipover has a matching stripe....and here's a Western touch, complete to the hilt. The Leap Year racket is so out and dried in Florida that cups are won with absolutely no proof of conquest. But the going is much tougher further north, for New York spinsters have been forced to organize, to plan the trapping of the wary male.

Into Port Arthur on Lake Superior rolls an unceasing flow of Canada's rich iron ore. American smelting furnaces can swallow every ton, and Canada (like Britain) stands in need of dollars.

Source of this flow of mineral wealth is Steep Rock mine, 4 hundred feet below the level of a drained-out lake. By day and night, giant grabs scoop reddish mud - in three ten bites - into a steady moving line of trucks.

But for the stubborn work of a Canadian prospector this bed of natural ore might not have been discovered. Success of the underwater mining operation was once very much in doubt. Reaching the ore was the biggest snag. Until three years ago, prospecting went on around the shores of Steep Rock Lake, before it was decided that the main ore body lay under the water. Hundreds of manhours were spent preparing the damming of the lake's arm. Surveyors brought up special pumps to suck up water by billions of gallons. Millions of cubic yards of rock were drilled and blasted to turn the river into a new course. Today, Canada's red mud sails out to meet the world's steel target.

LEAP YEAR

With only 300-odd days left in forty-eight, New York ~~spinsters~~ spinsters ~~sp~~ organize a Leap Year Club and lose no time in getting down to the business of laying plans to capture that most elusive animal: the American Bachelor

Okay, honeychile. Try it again.

SWEATERS

Yes, sometimes it's cold even in Florida. So what could be more appropriate than a sweater fashion show? Nothing, in the opinion of these Coral Gables models. This first pullover is a pastel boucle knit sweater, with cutout monogram at the neck. ①

This cap-sleeve slipover is of pale pink and soft gray. A basque shirt, ~~and~~ ^{with} and a sweater set. Here's something new.
It's a long sleeved pullover shirt with a hood.

This pastel slipover shirt has ^{matching stripe +} ~~turnback~~ cuffs. And here's a western touch, complete to the hilt. It's a western sweater that wins. Sheila Ann Poland, a sweater girl of nineteen sixty, presents the cup to winner Betty Williams.
