LIVERPOOL LOOKS AHEAD

Liverpool's famous landmark - the Royal Liver Building - is shrouded in fog on thirty days in the year. Fog brings delay to shipping and Liverpool lives by its shipping. But aided by the newly-opened port radar station - all ships - supervised from shore - can now safely navigate the Mersey Channel in all weathers. Good weather tests provide worthwhile practice for the pilots.

Shore-based radar gives a sixth sense to all navigators. In attacking fog - shipping's worst enemy - Liverpool looks ahead.
