SUICIDE RACE.

This picturesque section of Washington State is the stage for a wild and dangerous sporting event. Daredevil horsemen take off in the "suicide race," across obstacles unequalled in the world. First there's a little drop of about two hundred feet down the dusty side of an almost sheer cliff. When they reach the bottom, they cool off with a swim across the Okanogan River, notorious for its swift and treacherous currents.

Redskin Joe Harry is first home. He wins a hundred dollars and dinner served on the mantelpiece.
