

ROUGH GOING DOWN UNDER

Maree, Australia, gives a send-off to the biggest rodeo in New South Wales history with a beauty parade before the big show.

City slickers arrive by car, but at rodeo time the boys prefer to get about the hard way.

The mounts are unbroken colts, fresh from round-up. "Down goes Maginty.... but here's a cowhand who keeps his seat with one hand free.

Slow motion puts the brakes on the big duel of the day. Dobbin gives it all he's got, but his rider sticks tighter than a postage stamp.

One Briton's meat ration for a lifetime sheds its load as another rough-rider refuses to bite the dust.

One minute you're up, the next you're down. The going's rough for the boys who are really down, Down Under.
