AUSTRALIANS ROUTED IN DAVIS CUP

At Forest Hills, New York, Australia's John Bromwich - now serving - is at his brilliant best, as the Davis Cup final between Australia and America reaches its climax with a thrilling doubles match. Battling America's Billy Talbert - now serving and Gardner Mulloy, the Aussie team lasts through a five set, sixty-nine game, three-and-a-quarter hour uphill fight to upset all forecasts and electrify the crowd with their magnificent play.

Watch this action as Bromwich serves again.

Billy Sidwell - in jockey cap - smashes it home and Australia draws ahead in the last set. It's Mulloy's service as the game reaches match point for the fourth time.

Sidwell's return gives Australia their lone win in the series. Overwhelming the Aussies in the singles America retain the Davis Cup - four matches to one.
