

103153-C
49/80

ARE FASHIONS GOING BACK TO 1920?

Fashion pre-view. Designers take a peep back to the twenties for guidance to m'lady's winter wear. A 30-year cycle turns full circle - as the-day-before-yesterday's old look becomes the new-for-now look. And these are the hats to go with it. Like Roxanne's rolled turban-socking. These styles come from a New York designer to go with today's close-cropped hair do's.

Designer John is something of a conjurer. For, with a slight adjustment, Roxanne's metallic jersey turban sports a new jockey veil.

Even the trade names seem to be going backwards. This is named a flaming youth derby - with a flapper veil. And this racoon coat jumps from the twenties to the fifties.

And here's another old friend - aigrette feathers decorating a velvet cloche, with a flicker veil. Are fashions really going back to the Twenties? What's next on the list? Will tomorrow's styles come from the bird cage - or the farmyard?