

SPRINGBOKS SWAMP SCOTS

At Murrayfield, Scotland (playing in white) suffered their worst rucker defeat in living memory against the South Africans. For the first seventeen minutes they held their own and here's a Scottish attack that only just fails to come off. Then the Springboks really get going.

Fry gets the ball from the scrum. He's tackled but passes and Du Rand forces his way over to score the first try for South Africa.

After a second try by Van Scheer, Lategan cross-kicks to Koch who kicks ahead and races through to touch down.

Then from a Scottish line-out, Du Toit gets the ball; passes and Brewis drops a beautiful goal. It's all against Scotland, but grand rucker that has the crowds cheering. And here goes Brewis again. He passes to Koch who's in the thick of a struggling crowd but ambles out to touch down comfortably and make the half-time score Springboks 19, Scotland nil.

In the second half it's just as one-sided; Scotland fighting grimly, but the Springboks inspired; and here's Delpert running through to score.

Geffin converted. He kicked seven goals during the match.

Van Wyck was next. He collects ... sails through four Scots and scores. Muller added another and it was thirty-nine; nil when Dinkelmann scored a spectacular try right on the flag and Geffin made it forty-four; nil.
