

WAR MEMORIAL HOMES OPENED

At Allenton, near Derby, Edinburgh Crescent now means home for Mr. Williams crippled in a Mosquito crash ... and to Mr. Bellamy and Mr. Kent, victim of the earlier war. Mr. Bellamy was a Grenadier.

Mr. Ridgard is also moving into a new home, and Mr. Meller, one-time Malta gunner. For today the first twenty homes in Allenton Memorial village are to be opened by the Mayor of Derby, Councillor Grayson. Twenty donors who each gave the cost of a home are present to open their homes. Lord Hives turns a key, and Mr. and Mrs. Williams are 'at home' to their first guests. Foundation stone of the village was laid by the Queen three years ago when she was Princess Elizabeth.

Mr. Scott was paralysed at Anzio. Every tenant is disabled. Surely there could be no better war memorial.
