

TYPHOON HITS INDO-CHINA

The town of Saigon, in Indo-China was the victim of a fierce typhoon which swept in from the sea to uproot trees and destroy shops and homes. Casualties were few but communications were interrupted and even the sick suffered in the terrible storm. Gradually, willing helpers are restoring order from the chaos that was left in the wake of the typhoon.

Already the streets have been cleared to let traffic pass through. Now come reports that the typhoon has struck again.
