TULI BEATS HERMAN

Jake Tuli meets Vic Herman at Belle Vue Manchester, and Herman, a Glasgow boy, gets all set to take on the tough little Zulu who holds the Flyweight Championship of the British Empire. Tuli, who likes plenty of action, gets it in the opening rounds.

Tuli opens up, but his opponent is out of range. Now he tries to catch the Glasgow boy, who makes good use of the ring to get out of trouble — And Herman is down! But it's only a slip and he's soon back in action, keeping clear of Tuli's savage hooks.

The two fighters go back to their corners for repairs. Herman hasn't landed many good blows yet, and must be quite a bit behind on points. Tuli is all ready for the tenth and final round — maybe he'll throw his dynamite punch now to clinch the verdict.

Both boys slam away but not much damage is being done. They're both covering up.

Only a few seconds to go. It's a grand-slam finish all right.

And that's the end. There's not much doubt about the verdict. A comfortable winner on points is Jake Tuli, still the undefeated British Empire champion.
