

53/85.

GUY FAWKES CELEBRATIONS.

As if you didn't know it, firework time has come round again, and down at Edenbridge in Kent the man of the moment is the star of the show as usual. Tableaux, like this tribute to the Everest conquerors, are a traditional part of the town's celebrations. For more than three hundred years people here have given that wonderful guy who nobody loves a bit of his own back, and, whatever, the weather, he's going the same old way again, with all the trimmings.

Mr. Fawkes may not have been a great success during his lifetime, but local Edenbridge charities have a lot to thank him for - they're getting all the proceeds of the show.