HAMPDEN PARK - SCOTLAND 2,
IRELAND 2.

Scotland kick off at Hampden Park against Ireland, but the visitors soon take control and move away on the attack. This is the Diamond Jubilee International match between the two countries, so we can expect real fireworks. Of the 59 games played, Scotland have won 46. In the Scots counter-attack, inside left Fernie has it, but over now to inside-right Johnstone. Irishman Graham and McIlroy send him tumbling to the ground - and yes, a free kick.

Jimmy Davidson breaks through the barrier and Scotland are one up!

Three minutes later, Bingham gets it and there's the equalizer! A beautiful bit of work by Bingham who had snapped up a throw by the Scots goalie.

Scotland are off again, keeping the ball down on the carpet. Then centre-forward Buckley takes over and beats M'Cavana. But an Irishman's there. New Danny Blanchflower, number 4, takes up the running showing some of the class that puts him in the £40,000 transfer bracket. Fellow half-back Peacock joins him in the raid.

Bingham, shoots, Fraser parries it, but McAdams puts it into the empty net. 2-1 to Ireland.

Half-time comes and goes, and Scotland, with only eighteen minutes play left are desperate for the equalizer. An injury to Danny Blanchflower has caused reorganization in the Irish ranks, and their defence is in trouble. Bobby Johnstone takes a slam, and it's deflected into the net! Scotland 2, Ireland 2. And that's the final score to the Jubilee Match; a pretty fair result, and certainly a tasteful one.
