

DOMINICI GUILTY.

51/95.

2071201

The judge and jurors walk with Gaston Dominici from the court-room at Digne where the 77 year old peasant was brought to trial for the murder of the Drummond family. Two years ago, With them walks Dominici's eldest son, Clovis, who has openly accused his father of the crime. Court officials examine a Hillman car, similar to the one used by Sir Jack Drummond at the time of his murder. Crowds have gathered for a glimpse of the principal figures in the eleven-day trial that has attracted enormous interest all over the world. Now it is known that Gaston Dominici has been found guilty of the triple-murder and, unless his appeal is successful, he is doomed to die under the guillotine.
