SPELLING BEE FINALS - Washington

Baruch-Fitzgerald
F/G.

The nation's sixty-two top spellers assemble in Washington for the National Spelling Bee finals. Every syllable is sharpened, every diphthong is in place while tension mounts:

(Live sound)

Elsewhere the battle rages on, with the letter "o" going where so "o" should go.

Next comes "Follicle." And this contestant ~~xxxxix~~ faces "follicle" with, well, with no hurry.

A five-hundred-dollar prize for Sandra Sloss -- America's spelling champ."
