ERSKINE HOSPITAL.

For many years, disabled patients at Erskine .
two film programmes every week, supplied free of charge Renters' Society. In appreciation of this service, the hos, name one of its cottages after the Society.

Brigadier J.L. Heywood (in the centre) arrives to unveil a commemorative plaque on behalf of the Society, which represents almost the whole of Britain's film distributing industry. The cottage is one of several built in the hospital grounds for disabled ex-servicemen and their families. To men cut off from normal entertainment, the Society's help means a great deal.
