

LIGHT-FOOTED LOBBY:

Here's a new American truck that goes anywhere. It's called the Rolligon, and it's showing its paces over some rocky stretches of California that would stop a bulldozer. The Rolligon's inventor, Bill Albee, shows his faith in the ultra-low-pressure roller wheels. Though it's a seven-toner, this unorthodox vehicle "floats" its load so lightly over its human highway that no bones are broken.

How's that for a roll-over which leaves no hangover?