

58/68.TEENAGE FASHIONS.

The boom in the fashion styles of the twenties is catching on with people who weren't even thought of till the forties or fifties. Here's an American display of schoolgirl fashions which goes right back to the "flapper" age. Miss U.S.A. will be going to school this term, looking like something out of the family album. This will bring back memories for mother - but she'll be glad to know that all these cotton styles are washable and are easy to look after.

Now for velveteens and prints - and these youngsters don't stop at trying to look like flappers - they even dance like them. You might think a square would dance the Charleston nowadays - but dig this lot!

What'll the next be? Fourth-formers in hobble shirts and cartwheel hats?
