

ROYALTY SEE FASHION SHOW.

London Fashion Designers' display for the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret (Victor Stiebel and John Cavanagh sitting between them) was called "West End Story". Most of the materials on show were British. By Hardy Amies a short evening dress and coat in gold British Acetate and Luxex Lene.

Then, from John Cavanagh, came a suit in beige checked British wool and mohair, with coral pink sweater. Michael Sherard presented a suit in cream British tweed.

By Ronald Paterson there was a Ball dress in Pink/Grey chiffon.

Another Ronald Paterson creation; a beautiful Ball dress in white British lace and turquoise British orange.

A Norman Hartnell presentation was a Ball dress and stole-cape in yellow British moire.

When the display was over, the models were delighted to learn that they would be presented to the Queen Mother, who was attended by that eminent designer Victor Stiebel. Beautifully modelled had been dresses worth a small fortune, worthy of fashion's Royal occasion.
