BIGGEST TRUCK FOR U.S.

Le Harve's chief traffic problem wasn't created by the Easter holiday but by the world's biggest truck, on the way to the docks. It's been specially built in France for the Oil Industry Show at Tulsa, Oklahoma, so all they had to do was to get it there. No held up for cars crossing its path.

There was more room on the roads after the big lorry was airborne, hoisted aloft to go into the freighter "Dagrun". Three trucks of the same size are already working in the Sahara oilfields. They use so much fuel they need to be close to the source of supply.
