

59-66.SCOTS ELECT "QUEEN"

A boat with a load of beauty, and a lot of trippers, berthed at Rothsay, for the final of the Scottish Seaside-Queen contest. The Provost welcomed them on behalf of the town. Lucky man! The girls have been chosen by holidaymakers in various seaside resorts. Rothsay had the honour of picking the National Winner. The Pavilion staged the contest, and if it had been twice as big, there would still have been a full house. The lovely lassies of bonny Scotland are world-renowned; the 1959 vintage need have no fear; they do the country proud. Small wonder if the young males north of the Border have no wish to take their holidays abroad, or the older ones either.

The judges chose the girl sent to the Final by Duncraig, May Gillies. She comes from Ibrox. It was a popular choice.

The Provost's wife presented the trophy. In addition, May received a cheque for £20, and congratulations from the second and third prize winners.
