PRINCESS IN DEVON.

Crediton counted itself fortunate to be visited by Princess Margaret. Her Royal Highness came with her husband to unveil a memorial to St. Boniface, the son of Crediton who became a monk and converted large areas of Germany to the Christian faith, long ago in the Eighth Century. But even the Saint himself would have understood that today the main attraction was the Princess and her husband. Boniface is depicted at the age of 14, when he decided to become a monk. How pleased were the locals and holidaymakers that Princess Margaret accepted the invitation to Crediton.
