

MAC MAKES MR. K. SEE RED.

For the first time for days there was a feeling of hope in the General Assembly. Only Khrushchev and his servants were silent as Mr. Macmillan made his way to the rostrum. Here, everyone felt, was a man of real leadership-stature in the free world.

It was to the Russians that the Prime Minister largely addressed himself.

SOF

Khrushchev violently disagreed.

SOF

Khrushchev and Company, looking rather glum, very much in the minority.
