DUTCH SUBMARINE SUNK

Submarine O.11 of the Dutch Navy was in process of being filmed, by the authorities when a tug raised her. Film operators, Captain and some of the crew were thrown into the water, and the submarine sank in two minutes. The second officer was able to bring her partly to the surface, when twenty more members of the crew were saved. Three men were trapped. Strenuous efforts were made to rescue them, without avail. The steel hull of the submarine is their tomb. Thus Holland suffers the first serious accident in thirty years of submarine history.
