WALES V. ENGLAND RUGBY INTERNATIONAL

Fifty thousand people see the first war time international Rugby Match at Cardiff - Wales v England - England in white. The Wales pack is good, but England's play is superb. We've seen many worse peace time encounters. Early in the second half, England settle down to run the Welshmen off their legs, and they succeed like nobody's business..

A try, converted by Heaton, puts England on top, while a terrific run by Ololensky (running half the length of the field) given as fine a try as ever was ... To cut a long story short, England won by 18 points to 9.
