

A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

Six thousand feet up above the Australian Landscape, an eagle flew into one of the propellers of the Air Liner BUNGANA. Immediately the engine burst into flames and dropped off, and one wing began to crack up. But by a miracle of superb handling the pilot brought his plane down in a field... and no one was hurt.

Here the engine fell... half a mile from the spot where the air liner finally came to rest. There were eleven passengers. They had a rendezvous with death in the sky, they escaped without a scratch. And they're smiling now.

But the one who showed them all how to act in the face of disaster..... was the air hostess. Atta girl.
