RIVER PLATE HEROES CONVALESCING.

After the conquest of the Graf Spee many of the men who were wounded were landed in South Africa. Today most of them are nearly well again and look forward to another job like the last one.

Petty officer Truman of the Exeter, Nimmo of the Achilles, and Green of the Exeter. It would take more than Hitler to singe Nimmo's beard. But even the more seriously wounded are still cheerful. Sub-Lieutenant Causton R.N.V.R. has a broken leg, Staker Lewis has a broken neck... down...but not out.

As soon as they are fit enough to get about, what a Welcome Capetown gives them. They're virtually pelted with presents. One is an envelope with five one pound notes and a message "Thanks very much - have a drink".

And our South African commentator says just what everyone is thinking. "Today Capetown expresses what is in the hearts of us all. We are glad to help all we can".

And we at home.... are glad that our boys are in such safe hands... out there in the Empire.
