EGYPT PREPARED.

Mussolini's entry into the war... has at last brought action to the East. And far from the people of Egypt being dismayed... they are actually relieved. Now they know who is friend... and who is foe. Now the days of tense waiting are over...and its always the waiting that's the worst part.

If Mussolini tries to strike across the burning heat of the desert... and that alone is a gigantic obstacle... he will find an army determined and ready. He will find an army fully mechanised and perfectly trained in desert warfare.

Mussolini will find a force that will return blow for blow... and then some. War in the East doesn't affect the strength of the Allied forces in Europe. It only brings into action men who have been standing ready for months past. And now they're moving forward. But above all he will find men inspired by the righteousness of their cause... and by their faith in ultimate victory.
