NEW TANKS FOR OLD.

As you may suppose, tanks often sustain damage in the course of their job, and that, of course, means a spell "in dock".

After complete reconditioning has been carried out, the tanks are first taken on to the roads and across country for speed tests.

And can they go!?

And now for the severest test of all. Down... and up.... and oo-oh! If the vehicles don't stand up to this test the workmen are sore, and if they do stand up to it the testers are !

ANCIENT TO MODERN

Cannon of the 17th and 18th Centuries which, for more than a hundred years have acted mainly as bollards near the Tower of London, are on their way to be broken up and made into modern war weapons.

People who have stumbled across them in the black-out welcome their removal, but the dogs of East London are furious.
