WITH THE ROYAL TANK CORPS

Nearly a million pounds worth of heavy and medium weight British Tanks move off in mass formation for Battalion exercises. Instead of the usual open plains, they practice now in wooded countryside where they can lurch like "tired business men" at closing time.

24 tons of fighting steel go up and down like a department store lift girl in a hurry.

Well they seem to be getting all worked up, so let's get out of here before we collect a packet from one of their two pounder turret guns.
