'FRISCO FAIR FIRE.

At the Golden Gate Fair a big fire sweeps the fine building that represents the State of California, and for a time the whole of the Treasure Island section of the Exhibition is in danger.

The blaze spreads rapidly, in spite of the onslaught of the firemen, several of whom are trapped on the roof until their mates can rescue them.

For three hours the inferno rages, while the firemen battle to save nearby statues and landmarks. And although the California Exhibition is gutted, the rest of the Fair is saved.

The fire Squad of 'Frisco has done another big job of work.
